Financial Discussion

- State finance is tracking to budget and should meet the approved budget for FYE 6/30/2024. The budget included the use of reserves for an in-person Committee Day, support for Gov Trek and Membership initiatives. This impacted our cash balances as of 3/3/2024.
- Balances for cash and the Operating, Project and General reserve accounts well exceed policy minimum requirements. Investments returns, up over last year, fully offset the decrease in cash balances.
- Membership dues revenues have decreased over the prior year while expenses increased, but there is no current need to increase state dues. This will continue to be evaluated for future years.

Experts talk guns in coming forum

American Association of University Women organizers hope to start a 'countywide movement hosted in Petaluma'

By DON FRANCES
ARGUS-COURIER EDITOR

Gun deaths have become all too common in a society awash with firearms, say members of the Petaluma chapter of the American Association of University Women. That's why they are organizing a forum on gun violence prevention, "Normalizing Safety: Gun Violence Prevention," coming to the Lucchesi Community Center on Jan. 28 — a change that dynamic.

"Headsburg has also adopted this ordinance" along with other Bay Area cities, Barrett noted. The Headsburg and Santa Rosa AAUW chapters are joining the Petaluma AAUW chapter as co-sponsors of the event.

"We think it's the kind of issue that actually gives people some hope about what people can do," she said.

she and her colleagues believe that events like the upcoming forum — "Normalizing Safety: Gun Violence Prevention," coming to the Lucchesi Community Center on Jan. 28 — can change that dynamic.

effects of gun deaths, and how they can be prevented.

"This is an issue where Petaluma has been in the lead, in terms of safe storage for guns," said former Petaluma mayor Teresa Barrett, who is among the lead organizers of the upcoming panel discussion.

She was referring to a measure that passed in 2017.

LET THE PUBLIC SPEAK

Stopping gun violence

EDITOR: Gun violence has become a national public health issue. While California continues to lead the nation in smart gun violence legislation, smart gun violence continues and law enforcement guns off the street, we must do more as a community.

We need to have open and safe conversations about what actions we can take to help address gun violence. By working together, we can lessen the impact on our families, schools and communities.

All Sonoma County cities and counties should adopt
